Walking the walk of faith with Abraham

He figures prominently in three world faiths (Christianity, Judaism and Islam). Yet the life of Abraham is more than just the life of a religious founder. He embodies the life of faith, a lifestyle woefully deficient in many who claim the name of Christ today. The following study is an exploration of the life of Abraham - his failures as well as his successes. The study is centered in the narrative passages of his life (Genesis 11:27 - 25:10). Many of the outlines employed in the following studies have been borrowed from Warren Wiersbe's "Be Obedient," or from John Phillips's "Exploring Genesis." As we walk with Abraham down the road of faith, we will learn from him what it means to walk by faith.
